Macro's are great for when you want to quickly perform certain tasks. Macros can be very useful for people who spend their day typing and need to convert numbers, unit conversions or special characters in to other numbers or characters. When using macros it is possible to quickly convert a text number into a text character and to convert text characters into numbers and vice-versa. Using macros you can also save time for entering the numbers in to numbers or character cells. Macros can be used to create more accurate and efficient programs. Cells can be saved as they are being created or edited. They can also be saved as templates and later recalled. When writing or editing a cell, the available keys can be used to add and delete text characters.
