Your code will be saved in the cloud as a Kaggle notebook for you to access whenever you want. You can share your data with others. The code is yours and theirs. When you've done your work, you can hand it in. Install and setup To install Kaggle Notebooks, open the Kaggle Notebook page, and click the "Download" button. Or you can use pip and PyCharm to install Kaggle Notebook. Usage To create a Kaggle Notebook from scratch, click the "Create new" button. To edit an existing notebook, click the "EDIT" button. Other operations include Share Run Inspect and view the running notebook. Run a code block in the notebook Copy and paste cells into a new notebook Viewer Kaggle Notebook in action References Category:Data analysis Category:Data visualization softwareQ: MongoDB and Mongoose prevent 2 saving of same data I have 2 functions that save data into mongo. Now I have 2 asynchronous calls that both of them can save a same document in mongo at the same time. Now how can I prevent this? I mean, I want to ensure only one of the functions saves a document. Is this the way to do it? function saveDocument(doc) { User.findOneAndUpdate( { _id: doc._id }, doc, function(err, result){ if(err) { console.log(err) } else { console.log(result) }); } A: You will want to have an option in your update parameter that controls if it should be update-able or not. You can then apply your own logic for deciding whether or not you want to run the update. You can do it by adding a option for the update, like this

```
User.findOneAndUpdate( { _id: doc._id }, doc, { $setOnInsert: false },
```
