2D/3D game using Java Game Development. I'm using OrthographicCamera to move the camera around the world and for now my level is 100x100 square meters. I'm using plain old Map for collision detection. The problem is that I want to make a map of 1,000x1,000 square meters and my game object looks way off-center. I don't want to recalculate the camera position and I can't make the object behave like a camera and perform the zooming. How do I make my object behave as though it is always in the center of the world so that it looks like the camera in the Map? A: Put the object(eg, Player, or anything) in some location/positional/scale in world space. The more you can move it around the world, the better. Then use the scale ($y * \text{scale} = \text{world.GetHeight()} / \text{Player.GetHeight()}$) and positioning ($x * \text{position} = \text{world.GetWidth()} / \text{Player.GetWidth()}$) to calculate how much to move the player(or anything) around. Then move it to the new position. The rest of the camera should be relatively easy to figure out. Synthesis, electrochemistry, and luminescence investigation of a novel phenanthroline-appended flavin chromophore. A novel phenanthroline-appended flavin chromophore 1, prepared by a new two-step method, was characterized by ^1H NMR, HRMS, and X-ray crystallography. The molecules 1-4 were used to fabricate 4-(4'-[2
