I have this, but it just returns negative values. time=`date -u '+%H:%M:%S%N'` ... echo $time Any ideas of the correct syntax? I am on Mac OS X if it matters. A: date returns a POSIX timestamp as an integer, so you can compare them with the && operator: time1=$(date -u '+%H:%M:%S%N') time2=$(date -u '+%H:%M:%S%N') echo $time1 echo $time2 echo $time1 && echo $time2 Output: 14:48:58 14:48:58 00:48:58 A: If you want the real time, that is not in a POSIX compliant time format then you should use the answer from this question time=$(date -r) Also, there's an old, but quite complete and easy to understand postscript implementation of date in the dateutils package. 1. Technical Field The invention relates to the field of site-specific audio recording and playback systems, and
