Wealthy people like Michael Bloomberg and Mark Zuckerberg will be able to pay much lower taxes under a new law passed by the House and the Senate that is now headed to President Obama's desk. The bill, the Tax Cut and Jobs Act, will be the biggest tax overhaul in 30 years and is expected to slash taxes for the very wealthy at the expense of the working and poor. The legislation, which has received little scrutiny and has no chance of passing in the current Republican-controlled Congress, will slash the top tax rate for the wealthy from 39.6% to 38.5%. It will also lower the corporate tax rate from 35% to 21%, and give a pass to most taxpayers on the alternative minimum tax that was originally designed to make sure the wealthy pay their fair share. Here are the five biggest changes to the tax code that could affect you: 1. The estate tax: The biggest tax change involves the estate tax, which was originally designed to prevent millionaires from simply passing their money on to their children. Under the new law, you can leave your entire estate to your children without paying anything to the government. But it will become more complicated to claim this tax break because the threshold for when you start paying taxes is higher, and the tax rate itself is lower. The estate tax will kick in at $5 million or more, and there
