I will show you the future and all the mistakes that we have made. The past is gone, and the future will not be the same. We will live through “ZERO-DAYS”. We will suffer from great pain, but we will still want to survive. We will feel sorry for all the people we have killed, all the money we have stolen, all the drugs we have done, all the hate we have spread, all the people we have tortured. But it is too late. We will suffer, and there is no one we can save us. We’ve been calling it a virus, and now that it’s hit the US we’re calling it a pandemic. Both terms are accurate, but now the world is calling it the zombie apocalypse. That’s the term used for the 2013 film, ‘Zombieland’, although the term ‘zombie’ is a little more complex. It’s been defined as a person who has come back to life after being dead, and you will come across zombies in real life, but the zombie apocalypse isn’t something people were expecting. On the 2nd of March, the flu went global and moved into the US, the 5th largest economy in the world. This pandemic was expected, but the speed and scale of the outbreak caught people off-guard. In the US, H1N1 had been making news headlines in the news for a long time, but the Spanish Flu had been a forgotten disease. On the 1st of May, as we start to settle back in, or continue to fight the pandemic, the government has announced that the 2nd of May is ‘Zero Day’, the day that the government declared the crisis over. Our 1st and 2nd of May will be marked by the best and the worst that the world has ever seen, and no one will escape it.
