The shell hit the roof of the Times Square Hotel in the capital's West End but missed the president. The tank, part of the US military's 60th armoured vehicle regiment, had been travelling on the Champs Elysee in Paris. British police are said to be investigating the incident to determine whether the tank was fired at by a person or a vehicle. A Metropolitan Police spokesman told the BBC he could not comment on the investigation. A Foreign Office spokesman said: "We are aware that a tank has gone through the roof of the Times Square Hotel in London. "We are liaising with the US Embassy in London to determine what has happened."
