The rebel leader, who had his two sons killed at the age of 21, was in the habit of taking his bravado to dangerous limits. He once strangled a gardener who refused to pull a thorn out of a man's foot. When the stakes were so high, it's perhaps unsurprising that Sam would seek to strike back against the colonialists, with the help of both a plastic bag and a cheap revolver. The bag was to stop his accomplice in the crime, a motorist, from grabbing a sample of his blood. But his nephew, Nicola, who was also wounded in the conflict, was frustrated that Sam's plans for a life after fighting had stalled and wanted to keep the bag – declaring that he would "not let this to happen". The trouble is that the bag was sealed and he didn't have scissors to cut it open – so he decided to resort to another method. "He reached into the bag, searched a little and pulled out the gun and pulled the trigger," his sister, Esther, said in court. Wounds to the left side of the head and neck and the right lower leg would make Nicola's life a misery for a year, making his life a "living hell", according to Dr Aelsa Marx. The expert witness, who treated him, told the court that his continuing pain had left him unable to maintain a relationship with his girlfriend. There were further close calls. When the group were evicted from their small mountain village, they ran to the house

Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method of producing polyvinyl alcohol polymers to be used as resins for optical waveguide materials, in particular, for optical fibers, and to their production. 2. Related Background Art As a method of producing the polyvinyl alcohol polymers, a method of causing a dehydro compound of a low molecular weight polyvinyl alcohol (to be referred to as the polyvinyl alcohol hereinafter) to polymerize in the presence of an acid is known. For example, as an example of a polymerization method using a dehydro compound of a polyvinyl alcohol, U.S. Pat. No. 4,378,426 (corresponding to Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 59-151358) discloses a method of polymerizing a polyvinyl alcohol in the presence of polyacrylic acid. As another example, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 59-151360 (corresponding to U.S. Pat. No. 4,465,770) discloses a method of polymerizing a polyvinyl alcohol in the presence of a water-soluble salt of a dicarboxylic acid and a hydroxyl group-containing compound, having no aromatic ring and a molecular weight of more than 50. However, the method of producing the polyvinyl alcohol polymers described in U.S. Pat. No. 4,378,426 and Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 59-151358 by polymerizing a dehydro compound of a polyvinyl alcohol in the presence of polyacrylic acid has a problem that polyacrylic acid is colored by the coloring component contained in the polyvinyl alcohol and, therefore, the polyvinyl alcohol-polyacrylic acid copolymer obtained has a problem that the polymer is colored in a bad manner and the optical properties of the polymer are thus decreased. The present inventors have studied with an idea of solving the problems. As a result, the present inventors have found that the problems can be solved by polymerizing a dehydro compound of a polyvinyl alcohol in the presence of an aqueous solution of a polyacrylic acid having an average degree of polymerization of 1.5 to 1cb139a0ed
