Halo 3 for Xbox 360 is now available in ISO formats (PAL, NTSC-U). Jag/REGH console users can run the game directly from their hard drive. When building the Xbox 360 console, the Halo 3 Contra 2 Script Master Disk that was uploaded earlier is replaced with a fully functional Master Direct. The Master Director will include a package of plug-ins required to run the game, including Saints Row IV, Call of Duty: Ghosts, Stalker and Virtua Tennis, as well as a number of pre-production materials. The master direct also contains a 64-bit Halo code that will automatically transcode and unmount the video. The ten-year gap between updating the original master case with the script and its full version in Halo: Contris 2 will be about six months. The development team of Halo and Marvel Entertainment has announced that British studio Tori Amos has taken the lead in creating a new version of Scarface. The Wii version, which has undergone numerous changes, received updated animations, new music, and improved special effects. The game will be released exclusively for the Wii console in March 2012. For the ScarthX series, Nestl developed the new Fubar graphics engine, and for the DS device, the NMZTM multimedia database, which allows the game to support voice communication using the SAMSUNG Dolby system. New graphics solutions are used in a variety of games, such as toys in the 3DMark series and the playable version of the Metro: Last Light series. Scarff will be in development in January 2012 for Xbox One and later for PlayStation 3. The second half of August 2011 has been declared "Materials Evaluation" month in Europe. We liked the way New Zealand is developing, said regional manager John Eckert, Ciphre Labs, which created the Fuba engine, and we decided to involve small companies in this process and make it non-commercial. Ciphre Labs servers with graphics test engines are installed in many educational institutions in New Zealand, which in turn have already installed new products on them. It's a very good idea to help New Zealand companies learn something new about government
