More particularly, it relates to a method for use in forming a paint for which brightness is gradually improved by the addition of organic pigments, and to an amorphous silica composition having a high brightness. A conventional technique for forming an amorphous silica material is disclosed by Japanese Patent Unexamined Publications No. 204763/1990 and No. 168/1990. In the technique of Japanese Patent Unexamined Publication No. 204763/1990, a sol of amorphous silica is obtained by hydrolyzing and polycondensing a mixed solution of tetraalkoxysilanes, and the obtained sol is subjected to a granulation process to obtain an amorphous silica material. Meanwhile, in the technique of Japanese Patent Unexamined Publication No. 168/1990, an amorphous silica is obtained by hydrolyzing and polycondensing a mixed solution of tetrachlorosilane and a polyfunctional alkoxysilane. Moreover, Japanese Patent Unexamined Publication No. 159867/1992 discloses a technique for obtaining a suitable silica sol in the manufacturing of a finely divided porous silica which is a material generally used as a filler for plastics and rubbers.The most controversial presidential candidate we have ever seen might have a lot more freedom than his opponents would like.
